Dear Mr. Merritt,

Congratulations! From a field of over 38,160 contestants and 4,114 coaches from 2,534 universities in 101 countries on six continents competing at over 459 sites, your team is one of one hundred twenty-seven teams that will advance to the 39th Annual World Finals of the ACM International Collegiate Programming Contest sponsored by IBM. Hosted by the Moroccan Association for Computing Machinery, Mohammed V University, Al Akhawayn University, and Mundiapolis University, the competition will be held May 16-21, 2015 in Marrakech, Morocco.

Courtesy of the Moroccan Association for Computing Machinery, Mohammed V University, Al Akhawayn University and Mundiapolis University, and IBM, your team will be provided hotel accommodations with gender privacy, breakfast, lunch, and dinner for the coach and contestants arriving May 16 and departing May 21, 2015. All ICPC events and food functions are provided at no cost to registered participants.

Persons invited from Rice University are John Greiner, Coach; Nick Merritt, Contestant; Philip Taffet, Contestant and Jose Carlos Vera-Garza, Contestant.

Required team attendance includes Registration, TechTrek, the Opening Ceremony, World Finals Dress Rehearsal, the UPE Dinner, the ICPC World Finals, the Closing Ceremony, and the Celebration.

Hotel information will be sent to you by the middle of February by the Guest Manager (worldfinalsoffice@acmicpc.org). For visa assistance, contact the Visa Manager (visas2015@acmicpc.org).

For details, visit the World Finals section of the ICPC Web Site at <http://icpc.baylor.edu>. Please read the rules very carefully. If you have any questions, please contact the Contest Manager at manager@acmicpc.org. We look forward to seeing you at the World Finals!
